

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A mobile terminal of the present invention have a personal authentication function and a communication function for bi-directionally communicating with a communication base station.

- 5 The mobile terminal includes a personal authentication information storing section, an identity information inputting section for inputting identity information of a current user, a personal authentication section which checks authenticity of the inputted identity information, and an informing section which
- 10 transmits the result of the check of the authenticity of the identity information to the communication base station.